Raw Materials Red Lentils

The Red or Persian Lentil, which is more commonly sold split, is commonplace in many Asian and Indian recipes. The variety 'Northfield' is an Australian variety that is much sought after overseas whole, due to its small plump shape and its consistent seed coat. Like the French green lentil its small size means no soaking and adds an earthy, slightly spicy flavour to numerous dishes.

Raw Materials French Green Lentils

Lentils Du Puy originate from the fertile Puy region in France and are well regarded for their green and black speckled appearance, nutty flavour and firm texture.

This unique variety of lentil has a creamy interior and black exterior that contrasts well with white meat.

Santo Tomas Bomba Rice

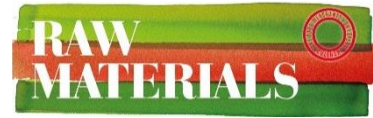

Rice was cultivated in Spain long before it reached Piedmont in Italy. Some of the best rice growing areas in Spain are in Valencia, which just so happens to be considered the epicentre of Paella – the dish that is the glorious marriage of sea and land. It is one of the only rice-growing regions in Europe to have its denominación de origen (DO).

Bomba is the finest most sought after rice from Spain. This premium quality rice produces enhanced flavour and texture due to its ability to absorb over three times its volume in liquid.

It maintains the integrity of its individual grains and a firmness that compliments the flavours it absorbs. Why not use it with large prawns and some saffron for a simple but delicious golden rice.
